With this new feature, Microsoft's digital assistant is finally available for all Windows 10 users. As Microsoft notes, this news is also likely to usher in a new wave of users entering the market. As for the new user interface, Microsoft has shifted its search bar to the top left side of the screen, the Start button is back and menu items have been squeezed for better compactness. Plus, an emoji symbol has also been added to the lower left corner of the screen. Cortana runs on top of Windows 10, and is accessible on the lock screen. The feature can be accessed by pressing the Windows logo key (either the one on the keyboard or by swiping in from the left edge of the screen). Microsoft is promising that Cortana will soon be available on tablets and other devices (such as phones) as well. The company is also anticipating its release on other operating systems as well.
