The Jahia SDK Activation Code (Software Development Kit) includes the source code of the most commonly used components of the Jahia framework. No additional code is required to complete the SDK installation. All frameworks, libraries, and samples are included in the source code archive. The SDK is not a "standalone" product and, by itself, has no capabilities. It is designed as a prototype or environment for software developers to create features and applications that can easily integrate with and extend the Jahia framework. With Jahia SDK, developers can modify or replace the features of the Jahia framework, create new components, add features to the framework, or create a new framework for their own needs.

Jahia SDK Completes the SDK Installation

Prior to installing the Jahia SDK, your system must meet the requirements listed in the Requirements section, listed in the About the Jahia SDK. The requirements of this section are not met. Steps to Fix the error:

- 1) Unzip the Jahia SDK into a software development directory.
- 2) Remove the Jahia SDK from the application folder and add it to the GAC (Global Assembly Cache).
- 3) Install the Jahia SDK to complete the install: Install-Package Admin -Prerelease C:\Windows\Microsoft.NET\Framework\v4.0.30319\Install-Package admin -Prerelease
- 4) Add the assembly name of the SDK to the compilation of all your applications. For example: Or, to use the suggested name of the SDK assembly: To add assembly reference, you need to add the information in the above line to your csproj file. Example: Some components that are not a library cannot be referenced directly. You may have to copy the dlls into your project or use a shortcut to the assembly. For example: Copy the dlls to your project or reference the library (copy the dlls to your project):
