When he dropped it off he said it was leaking coolant. He said he put on a new gasket but it still leaks. I have never been too worried about his car but now I do. I know he never drove the car and it sits in his garage all the time. He has since sold it. I need some help here and I was hoping you VW guys would be able to help. Unfortunately there are probably a few different things going on there, so it's not possible to say what the problem is. If it's coolant leak, then you may be looking at a cracked head, or it may be the head gasket. If the head is cracked, then the coolant
