MencoderGUI is a powerful, free, menu-driven multimedia tool for those who want to create their own movies, videos, sounds, or presentations. MencoderGUI is a powerful, free, menu-driven multimedia tool for those who want to create their own movies, videos, sounds, or presentations. The GUI interface was designed to be easy to use, and to give a simple method to create, edit and convert videos in all formats. It features a default set of menu-based functions, for creating both high quality and standard quality videos, but allows for almost any configuration of functions. It is highly configurable and extensible, and has powerful features for quickly creating complex transformations of video, images, or audio. It includes several filters, such as speed, contrast, brightness, and general image effects. It also includes high quality resampling, especially for creating high definition videos from lower quality source material. MencoderGUI is highly configurable; users can easily create their own functions in Lua, C, Python, Perl, or Java. All of the program is under a single license, and users can add and modify functionality by recompiling the program. It can be used for home movies, TV shows, documentaries, schools, and any other purpose.
