Versefy is a third-party application with a single, well-determined purpose to instantly display the lyrics of any songs you're listening to on Spotify. Works with the desktop version only As many of us are aware, Spotify has both a desktop client as well as a web service. As long as you are logged in on your account, nothing will be stopping you from using any platform regarding searching for songs and play them. However, Versefy is limited to the desktop version only, so don't try to run this app with the web service, they're not compatible. Intuitive layout Interface-wise, there is not much to talk about, but that's not necessarily a bad thing, especially when the users are mainly concerned about lyric accuracy. Still, there are some aspects to it that might prove handy in certain situations. For example, the background can be switched between a dark and white theme. Zooming in the lyrics is also possible, going from an 8px zoom level up to 42. Furthermore, the text can be visually enhanced by enabling the "Bold Font." A "Focus Mode" can also be activated, which results in removing any UI-related elements, further emphasizing the lyrics. Where are the lyrics coming from? The application makes use of three sources from where the lyrics are imported. The so-called sources are established web services dedicated to musical knowledge and lyrics collection. These are Musixmatch, Genius.com, and Tekstowo.pl, and the settings menu where they're located allows one to enable/disable them at any time.
