Photoshop is the most widely used graphics application in the world. Today, Photoshop is the most popular software for photo editing on desktops and photo editing on smartphone and tablets. And this is Photoshop Elements 11, which is free for home use and has been around since 2006. Why did Adobe add support for iPhone and iPad, and other mobile devices? Adobe released Photoshop CS6 in March 2015. In the next few years, the company has been running a series of free updates for the software. Adobe is now working on the next version, Photoshop CC 2019, but it seems that this version will be significantly more expensive than the previous versions. Photoshop is a big program and it's hard to make it smaller with features that will be needed only by a very small minority of users, while the majority of users want all features. Last year, Adobe created Photoshop Cloud with the idea of making it easy to save Photoshop files online and offline and making them available on any device. While the final version of this application won't be released for a year, early screenshots reveal that it looks very similar to Photoshop. It's easy to make your own cloud storage backup and just download your files when you need them. This is an amazing feature and even though Photoshop Cloud still doesn't have great file support, it's a good start. With Photoshop Cloud and other online storage, users can get copies of their files from any device, anywhere, even if they lose them or accidentally delete them. Here are other best software alternatives to Photoshop: Google Drive – Google Drive is a cloud storage service that allows users to store documents, presentations, images, and more. Google Drive is great, but it's not included with every new Android device. Google Drive is also the default office-suite in Android. It's not a bad idea because Google and Samsung make a lot of money from Android users. Microsoft Office 365 – Microsoft Office 365 is Microsoft's answer to Google Drive. Unfortunately, Office 365 is not included with every new Android device. Office 365 is a solution for large companies. But, if you want to try it, you will have to pay for a one-time fee ($70) plus a monthly fee ($6/user). In addition, you will need a company with a monthly fee for Office 365. Q: Editable Gridview Row's Click event I want to have a gridview on which i want the row to become editable in clicking on it for the first time and after editing or cancelling the save of the changes to the database it should get the focus back again and not be editable. I have used this `grdTemp.RowEditing += new GridViewEditRowEventHandler(Row_Editing);` but it is not working. I need to cancel the edit on clicking outside. A: Try this to cancel the edit in your `Row_Editing` event: `private void Row_Editing(object sender, GridViewEditRowEventArgs e) { e.CancelEdit = true; GridViewRow row = (GridViewRow)(sender as GridView).Parent; ((TextBox)(row.Cells[2].Controls[0])).Focus(); }` The present invention relates to a wedge anchor for supporting loads, especially for use in buoyancy compensator flotation devices of submarines. It is known to provide wedge-shaped anchors with a leg portion extending laterally out from the wedge portion of the anchor and suitable fastening means for attachment of the legs to a support, such as the hull of the submarine. It is also known to provide buoyancy compensator flotation devices (BCF) for submarines which are constructed to be removable and which may be filled with a buoyant liquid such as water to compensate for a significant weight loss of the submarine. Such a buoyancy compensator provides a cavity in the submarine hull which may be filled with an amount of liquid as determined by the specific volume of the cavity and the desired buoyancy of the submarine. In a typical arrangement, the buoyancy compensator may be located in a cavity in the lower pressure hull of the submarine and include a generally hemispherical shell defining a primary chamber which may be filled with water. An inner chamber formed by a "seal wall" is located within the primary chamber and contains ballast material, for example, styrofoam balls, or is filled with ballast material. The inner chamber is adapted to be filled with a compressed gas from a

Q: What's the difference between a swift and an objective-c? I find it hard to understand the difference between the objective-c and the swift development. I would like to know what is the difference, who should use the swift or objective-c and what are the benefits of one of them? A: It is difference in programming language, both Objective C and Swift are programming language. Swift is similar to objective C but it is have some of the new features and also Swift is compiled using Clang compiler. Here is the preface of Swift programming language. Swift is a new programming language that builds on the foundation of Objective-C and provides an elegant, safe, and productive alternative to C and Objective-C. Swift bridges the gap between object-oriented and functional programming in a way that makes development easier and more fun. There are some languages that support both Objective C and Swift. One of the few languages that supports both is Cocoa Touch. You can use Objective C code inside Swift programming language. You can use Swift in iOS app Development It's just like objective C but some new things in it that you don't find in objective C. Q: Switch the color of the row from 2 to 3 and the buttons as well I am using a switch statement to change the background color of the rows from 2 to 3. This is working fine but I am unable to figure out how to switch back to 2. So what I am doing is from 2 to 3 the first row will have a green background and the two other will have red backgrounds. I tried setting the background colors in the switch statement at 2 and 3 but then it changes all rows (i.e. just one row is red). Below is the code. Any guidance would be really appreciated. Thanks `row_name = [] col_name = [] data = [] data = open("data.txt", "r").readlines()` for line in data: `col_name.append(line.strip())`
`row_name.append(col_name[0].strip())` for k,v in enumerate(data): if `row_name[k]==2`: `row_name[k] = 'green'`
