Chiral nonlinear optics with a nonlinear magneto-optical vanadium-doped glass. Chiral optical nonlinearities are demonstrated in a dielectric magnetic vanadium-doped glass exhibiting the magneto-optical Faraday effect. A chiral nonlinear optical response is demonstrated for the first time in a nonlinear magneto-optical medium, and the response is attributed to an optical resonance that arises due to a simple rotation of light polarization at the magnetic resonance frequency.Q: Reading structured files in python This issue has been bugging me for too long, and perhaps it is not even possible to do what I want. I am going to add some comments before I start explaining the problem I'm having. I have
