FEEDBACK

About a week after releasing the above information, a wide array of players asked about 'how to get out of the mansion'. This was probably for a couple of reasons; the first being that the game does not have travel points or dungeons to automatically be connected to 'mansion mode'. The second was the fact that you do not need to move to the world map to turn the game into 'mansion mode'. I had heard this request before (about 'Easy Mode', 'l'Ecrivain Mode', and 'PvP mode') and I was thinking 'Well, both are out of the question, so there's no reason for anyone to ask for those.'

However, after hearing 'mansion mode' over and over again, I started to wonder about how a 'normal' player could get out of it. I thought a lot about this for a while. At first I considered the option of 'nearly always being connected to mansion mode' but then I thought 'Hmm...there may be something else.' Finally, I remembered the reason I thought 'I'll make a game that's not based on statistics or a survey (but that makes it easier to think about the various ideas).'

In the game, you can directly connect with other players and travel together.
