Note You can access the Chapter 4, Saving Files, task in this chapter after you open a file in the Chapter 1, Starting Photoshop task in the Chapter 1, Starting Photoshop task. # Working with File Names A great many image files you'll work with and save in Photoshop are already saved in a file format that resembles a standard.jpg,.jpeg,.png,.gif, or.tiff file. In other words, the filename of most files is that of the original file. This file extension or file format is sometimes called the `_file format_` or `_file type_`. These file extensions are fixed and can't change. An image file's `_file extension_` (also called a `_file format_`) `_` however, can have one of three different structures. A picture's file format, in the most simplistic sense, can be a three-letter code that identifies it. For example,.jpg stands for a `_Joint Photographic Experts Group_` image file format. Another way to describe this file type is that it stores the image in a `_lossy_` format, which means it stores only those aspects of the original that are necessary for the image to be displayed onscreen. For example, the.jpg image format stores only colors that display onscreen as opposed to the entire image data. A file format's structure can be more complicated. The `_exif_` format, which stands

Democrat presidential candidates go all-out to sell seniors on ObamaCare. Some 900,000 seniors and disabled Americans who lose Medicare coverage will get $25 per month next year as part of a deal President Obama cut with Congress on extending funding for his ObamaCare boondoggle. The money will be paid for by cuts in Medicare "duplicate payments" to three health care companies that cut corners on paperwork, save money, but some argue have cost seniors and disabled patients money. The money being "penned in" from Obamacare, and may not be part of the $20 billion that Obama claimed he has been paying to help "keep seniors healthy" was announced as part of a deal to keep the government running. Seniors and disabled Americans were not consulted on how their money was spent. The deal was approved by a Republican-controlled House in an almost-complete contrast to the situation when ObamaCare was first rammed through Congress by liberals with a House-passed bill with no senate or House approval. The federal budget deal to continue funding the government will extend by two months the current spending bill that gives Obamacare subsidies until March. The budget deal, which took place in a conference committee, does not include funds to pay the subsidies for Medicare beneficiaries under the Part D program. Democrats insist that the money the three companies saved by cutting corners is pocketed by the federal government – and not public money. But they argue that the amount the companies saved the government is "similar to" the amount that seniors and disabled patients have paid out in "cost-sharing reduction payments" to insurers. "As a result of these enhanced payment methodology, the Secretary [of Health and Human Services] believes that public funds are currently being used in connection with private plans in a manner that results in a roughly comparable level of savings," the budget deal said. "I will sign this bill into law," Obama said in the White House Rose Garden after signing the agreement. "But I want the American people to understand this: You have a situation here where in fact a few providers are, in fact, delivering a better service and a cheaper service." "We are providing tens of billions of dollars in subsidies" to the health industry, Obama told reporters. "We are providing a multi-billion dollar slush fund to a few

The present disclosure relates to content sharing and, more specifically, to the presentation of a content sharing request to a user in a system in which the user has requested a content sharing opportunity. Social networking systems have become prevalent in recent years because they provide a useful environment in which users can connect to and communicate with other users. A variety of different types of social networking systems exist that provide mechanisms allowing users to interact within their social network. In addition, a user can use his or her social networking system to interact with content, such as advertisements, that are provided by various other users in the social networking system. The social networking system can use this interaction to present content to the user and to provide content to the user.

Q: How to add a 'save as' button to an image in jsp I am working on a project where I have to display images on my jsp page and the user can download it. The problem I am having is that the images will have a watermark on them and it will change everytime the images are downloaded. So I need to make a save as button which when the user clicks on it, it will run a script on the server to remove the watermark from the image and show the image without the watermark. I am using tomcat Any help on how to do this is greatly appreciated. Thanks.

A: You can give a URL to the image (using an attribute if required), let's say your JSP is called "image.jsp": Then on the server side, just use `ImageIO.read(URL)` to get the image content and replace the watermark:

```
public class ImageIOtest {
    public static void main(String[] args) throws IOException { String watermark = "Your watermark";
        URL watermarkURL = new URL("");
        File watermarkFile = new File(watermarkURL.getFile());
        BufferedImage image = ImageIO.read(watermarkFile);
        for (int i = 0; i
