Chuwi Hi10 Pro is yet another Windows 10-based tablet from Chinese electronics giant Chuwi. As a competent mover in this niche, the Chuwi Hi10 Pro is welcomed with open arms. The tablet, however, is not only a worthy contender in its own league, but also a marked upgrade from the Chuwi Hi10. So let's check it out. Design & Display The Chuwi Hi10 Pro sports a 10.8-inch IPS display with 2160x1440 pixels (273 ppi) resolution. Chuwi claims that this display has been developed with its own digital milling process. As a result, the tablet's display is said to have high fidelity and rich color perception. It's also flexible. The tablet uses a matte anti-glare coating for improved viewing. It has built-in stereo speakers with Dolby Audio Premium technology and also features integrated mic and dual-microphone support. It is a 13.25-mm thick device and weighs around 386 grams. The tablet's backside is made of plastic and is pretty solid. It should be noted that Chuwi Hi10 Pro is not a slimmer tablet and has a rather big form factor. The tablet is a part of the category of the "large tablets". In terms of dimensions, the Chuwi Hi10 Pro has a thickness of 9.5mm and width of 295mm. Its volume is 9.91 liters and weight is 398 grams. The tablet's battery is 8080mAh and supports up to 10 hours of video playback. Also, the tablet supports Qi wireless charging which means you can charge the Chuwi Hi10 Pro with other Qi-compatible devices. Hardware The Chuwi Hi10 Pro features a MediaTek Helio P20 deca-core processor. It is powered by a deca-core MediaTek Helio P20 processor that delivers a Quad-core 2.0GHz CPU and four 1.4 b7e8fdf5c8

Stick Crack [Mac/Win]

Stick is a lightweight desktop enhancement utility whose purpose is to help you organize the space on your desktop with the aid of multiple tabs. Tabs may help you access a certain folder, take notes, browse on the Internet, and start programs. Look for the utility in your system tray You can access the tool via your system tray. A left-click on its icon opens up the configuration panel where you can customize the looks and functionality of each tab, while a right-click allows you to create all sorts of tabs. A help manual is included in the package in case you want to find out more about the app's configuration settings. By default, you can place multiple tabs at the top part of your screen and make use of the drag-and-drop support for moving them to the left or right side. Plus, you can dock them or show their content, and pin the tabs to the left, right or bottom part of the screen. Place various tabs on desktop Stick gives you the possibility to add different types of tabs, such as Calendar, Calculator, News Feed, TaskBar, Navigator, and Notes. The Calculator lets you perform basic mathematical operations, like addition, subtraction and division, and copy the results to the clipboard, while the Calendar offers support for different view modes. What's more, the News Feed is built for grabbing feeds from a user-defined online source. You can make the application delete entries that are no longer in the list with recently downloaded feeds, show text preview, and refresh the information at a custom number of minutes. TaskBar makes a list with all running programs and lets you gain access to their interface with a single click, while the Navigator can be used for exploring the content of a target location from your computer, showing items with different view modes (details, list, large or small icon), and opening the Explorer location when a file is stored. Last but not least, the Notes option helps you write personal notes or paste the text from the clipboard, adjust the text in terms of font, size and color, perform searches, and print data. Tab customization options Stick creates a list with all running tabs and allows you to set up each one by altering the title, theme, transparency, automatic hiding option, and automatic refreshing mode.
