Does your business have a "Greenwood the Last Ritual" that you perform regularly? Here are some of the ways Greenwood the Last Rituals are done in the reality-based community. Clean out your space Empty your refrigerator Clear a 'to do' List of all the things you need to get done Apologize for past mistakes made by your team Allow your hands to touch each person's hands Accept the "natural order of things" Clear your vision for your business Towel off Rinse the sink Clean out the mop bucket Check what each of your team needs to do Clean the office Burn your business card Look after the feng shui Cleans your energy Feel life energy again Release negativity Call team members who aren't returning calls Ask what is the next step for your team Say sorry to your customers Use another chakra cleanser to boost the energy In this post, I'm going to expand on the last ritual – clearing the energy. How to Clear the Energy Here's a simple way to clear the energy of your business. 1. Start a ritual of clearing the energy with a short meditation – 5 – 10 minutes. 2. Open your 3rd eye or the extra-terrestial eye. 3. Take a deep breath in and out through your nose. As you inhale, let the focused intention drive your breath into your solar plexus first. 4. Hold your breath in your solar plexus, imagining the energy you are feeling as being similar to a bow and arrow that is compressed. Point the bow directly at the overhead energy that is creating negativity in your business. 5. After clearing the energy in your solar plexus, breathe slowly through your mouth. 6. Tell your team members how the energy of the business is impacted by their personal choices, and the choices of the customers. Do not let anyone try to change the energy on you. You are having this vision so you have to decide how much of your own energy you are willing to sacrifice to their choices. 7. If you notice you are repeating the same scenario, get your team together and ask them how they are feeling about the scenario. Are

"Rail Recon is a single player experience that can be done in a few hours, but not without a purpose. The level design has space for strategy and plenty of hiding spots, but none of them are invincible. There are danger zones and everywhere you go someone is ready to gun you down, so you have to be on your game." -Ed Harper "In Rail Recon you are given a basic mission on what needs to be done, then left to your devices. You can go in blind or over-think it. I would recommend the former, you'll enjoy the game more, and you'll end up with a high score. You also have your energy shield, just in case you get into an area with too much firepower. You have a laser cannon to dispose of the enemies... and a mouse to get in the way of your aim." -Tom Forrester "There was a lot to learn, so I was learning along with the game. I like when that happens. Rail Recon is a game with a beginning, middle and end. There is nothing vague about it. It is straightforward to the point, and shows no signs of becoming tedious. It has a fairly even flow to it, and you don't get stuck in a rut. When it comes to difficulty, it's not hard, but you will need to make an effort to learn the game. I would give it four stars because I like that." -Massimiliano Stella "I love it when a game that was rated as 'easy' ends up to be really challenging to complete. Rail Recon is definitely a game that has that! And not only is the gameplay challenging, but the environment is too. The gameplay is such a massive success that I find myself enjoying it more than ever. I would say that Rail Recon is worth a rent, if you are a fan of "retro-futuristic" games." -Calvin Hubbard "There are some moments in Rail Recon that show the developer's fine taste for gaming the system. So, when you run out of health, you can take the elevator and get a "free" life. The game also has a weight system that makes running out of health a little bit more of a pain. If you use the elevator to escape the assault, you have to hold the right button and, while you are in the air, press the attack button. With that, you fill the shield meter with energy. This is a little solution to get around the stupid
