1. Get a handle on Photoshop's basic tools. The most common, necessary tools are the Layers window (Ctrl+Alt+L or the main menu's Layers command) and the pencil tool (Command+B). See Chapter 5 for more on using these tools. 2. Understand the shortcut tools. As explained in Chapter 5, you can access numerous shortcuts using these tools, including the zoom tool (Option+scrollwheel) and the crop tool (Crop). * * * # Professional keyboard shortcuts The first line of icons in the Layers window (the default view, as shown in the top of Figure 4-1) control the Photoshop window and some of its functions. The default view is the most common method of working with the Layers and Tools windows. To change the default view to the Compact view, choose Window=>Workspace. The Compact view removes the menu bars and toolbars from the window. In Windows, the main menu's Layers command has a couple of subcommands to zoom in or out. See the Help menu to see how to access these commands. In Mac OS, you need to use the View=>Tool Windows=>Layers menu command. * * * 3. Choose to work with gradients. If your image or web page background has any shades of gray or color variations that use gradients, you can make them more cohesive by choosing the Gradient overlay from the Overlays panel. You can add more than one gradient overlay, so be creative. As the image in Figure 4-1 shows, I added two. I selected the top-most layer in the Layers window and used the Gradient Overlay dialog box to choose the linear gradient shown. When you choose a gradient, the Gradient Overlays panel opens, where you can find more options. 4. Use the Clone Stamp tool. The Clone Stamp tool enables you to not only remove unwanted parts of an image, but add to the part you want to keep. This tool shows up in the bottom-left corner of the Layers window. Choose a color for the clone and a blending mode; you can also choose from a number of different brush sizes, shapes, and hardness. Figure 4-2 shows the options for the clone tool. * * *

Effectiveness of continuous monitoring of high risk patients on the prevention of post-operative pulmonary infection. Postoperative pulmonary infection is a very important complication in all operations. It causes prolonged hospital stay, increased hospital expenses and even increases mortality. At the same time, there are no statistically significant differences in the pulmonary function test results of these patients before and after surgery. We aimed to evaluate the relationship between pulmonary function tests and the incidence of pulmonary infection. This prospective study was conducted in the period between January 2002 and January 2004 in a university hospital in Istanbul. A total of 65 patients undergoing different types of elective operations were included in the study. All patients were followed up for 12 weeks. Results of pulmonary function tests of all patients were recorded preoperatively and postoperatively. In addition, patients were divided into two groups, pulmonary infection group and pulmonary infection-free group according to the clinical and laboratory examination findings. There was no statistical relationship between patient characteristics and the incidence of pulmonary infection. Forced expiratory volume in one second and forced vital capacity percentage changes after the operation were statistically different between two groups. There was a significant correlation between decrease of forced expiratory volume in one second and forced vital capacity percentage changes, with a decrease of these parameters in pulmonary infection cases (p=0.006 and p=0.005, respectively).Sociality Sociality is an animal's behavior toward other animals in its social group or population. It is a component of social behavior. Taxonomy Social behavior can be divided into two types of social system: the solitary system and the gregarious system. In the solitary system, animals occupy and defend a home range without being closely associated with any other animals. Animals within the same home range will avoid conflict by adopting a "creep-and-communicate" communication system. The gregarious system is more complex. In this system, animals associate with members of their own species, forming groups. Animals in a group tend to spend more time together and be territorial with each other, whereas animals in a solitary system are less likely to interact. In this system, food, territory, and mating rights are important. A CLINICAL EVALUATION OF PRELOAD WITH SPO2 IN STATUS BILIARY DYSPLASTIC PATIENTS. Epileptic seizure is a common complication in patients with liver cirrhosis. Preoperative assessment of cognitive performance is crucial to assess the patients to be allowed for elective surgery. The purpose of this study is to assess the correlation between the preoperative decrease in peripheral oxygen saturation and cognitive performance. Clinical, demographic, and neurocognitive data of the patients with hepatic cirrhosis who had undergone surgery were prospectively collected. Of the patients who were screened for cognitive performance, 70 had an adequate performance on the neuropsychological battery. Of those 70 patients, 47 had ascites and were included in this study. The mean Child-Turcotte-Pugh score was 8.27 ± 1.54. The mean change in the peripheral oxygen saturation was $9.06 \pm 2.82\%$. A positive correlation was observed between the mean decrease in the peripheral oxygen saturation and the Child-Turcotte-Pugh score ($P = 0.05$). In conclusion, the Child-Turcotte-Pugh score is one of the variables that can affect the decrease in peripheral oxygen saturation in cirrhotic patients with ascites. $3 * f = f + 6$. Suppose $f = 5 * g + 4 * u - 214$, $-4 * g = 2 * u + 3 * u - 164$. List the prime factors of g. $2, 3, 7$ Let $p(z) = 10 * z^{}3 -$
