FIFA Ultimate Team remains a centerpiece of the game, with more than 1,000 cards including FUT Champions. Players can also create their own cards in Team of the Season as well as FUT Icons, which are a selection of players that can be used in custom content. Player ratings have been recalibrated in FIFA 22. The top 20 and bottom 20 players have been given the biggest increases in ratings, with the goalkeepers receiving the biggest boost. The average rating has been lowered by 2.2 points, creating a more balanced on-field experience. The latest version of EA SPORTS FIFA also introduces "FIFA Connected", a new mode that lets players host, watch and review matches as if they're connected to the action through spectating and commentary options. Additional features include the ability to take the pitch with the captain of the opposition, and to share commentary with friends via voice chat. In competitive mode, new Special Kicks have also been added. There are three new Special Kicks: "Chip", a low-to-high lob with the kicker feinting or lunging for the ball; "Cross", a long-range shot delivered just past the edge of the box; and "Scissors", a close-range back heel that simulates a one-on-one move. The FIFA 22 UEFA Champions League rating and Ultimate Team game cards available for purchase in EA SPORTS FIFA Ultimate Team will unlock for all players on the 28 April (UK) / 21 April (EU) / 18 April (NA) release date. Highlights FIFA 22 takes players into more realistic environments with a series of new stadiums including: FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which features the first-ever usage of motion capture data in FIFA. The technology incorporates more than 1,000 animations - previously, the game only looked at player speed and power. Players will now fall to the ground more realistically, and will react to the ball being kicked or walled in various ways. This is combined with data from 22 real-life players to recreate complete matches in 3D. "FIFA 22 is the most sophisticated game engine ever developed for a soccer simulation," said John Galbreath, Senior Producer. "The new gameplay is rooted in player movement, so we needed a way to tell the difference between a

THINK YOU KNOW ABOUT FOOTBALL? Well you know how some people love football and some people hate football. The game is FUTSAL. THE GAME IS FUTSAL. You play a FUTSAL minigame in FIFA. You need two footballs on the same pitch. You move the goalie around, and goalkeepers move in and out all the time. There are all kinds of formations, and you score goals by passing the ball to your teammates. There are hundreds of different teams, and they have different players, and they all have different jersey colors. There are also many rules. The goalkeepers don't go out too far on the goal line. The offside line is there to stop too many players moving together, and not just one, two, or three, but ALL OF THEM. You can't play for over 3 minutes after the referee blows his whistle. There are only two balls on the pitch at the same time. One of them is FIFA 22- That's the one you play. There is also VIDEO FOOTBALL, but that's not FIFA. FIFA is FUTSAL, and that's that. You can also play FIFA pitch for the really serious footballers, like in FIFA ULTIMATE TEAM. or if you have £39.99 they can even play FUTPITCH. Which Head to Head Mode should I play? There is no single best Head to Head mode. They're all pretty great. Do you like goals? Then you'd probably be best with matchmaker. Do you like goals? Then you'd probably be best with matchmaker. Do you like tactics? Then you'd probably be best with matchmaker. Do you like tactics? Then you'd probably be best with matchmaker. Do you like a game where some vague word means strategy? Then you'd probably be best with matchmaker. This is a game where you can say one thing and it might mean something else and it might mean the opposite thing. This is why people fight about the game. It's not a very good game if you know what to say and what to do. There is also online Head to Head that you play with players who probably don't like you. But they're not very skilled. Better than EA. Better than EA. Better than EA. There are also online Head to Head multiplayer modes, where you only control your player and your opponent. You can do whatever
