Idesmen." The "N.Y.C. Idesmen" is a group of people who have been selected to undergo the program, along with a group of volunteers. Once they enter homes, they will photograph each resident's mailbox and take a photo of their door lock. Then they will do the same for each resident's car. The group's ultimate aim is to create a profile of every New Yorker's interior and exterior, including photos and text descriptions of the mailbox, car and person. If the officers are able to identify the thieves, then the police will be able to place a reward on their head. This is the first time the program has been put into action, as the police have had trouble keeping up with thefts of purses and other small items. According to the chief of the New York Police Department, they can potentially identify up to 11 million suspects. "We got a lot of complaints, mostly about stolen property," he said. "We have a lot of work to do." A few tips to remember if you're a victim of a crime: If you leave your vehicle unattended, remove the keys If you leave a door unlocked, check it every few minutes All serial numbers should be either on the handle or hidden somewhere around the vehicle Check the house before going in and, if possible, get a lock from a hardware store The police have begun to track the stolen goods by entering the serial numbers into a database.
