

The spatial asymmetric encoderdecoder network (SpAsE-Net) is introduced in this paper. SpAsE-Net is suitable for crack detection in 3D-IGS, especially the complex crack location. The comparison of the SpAsE-Net and 1D-CNN shows that SpAsE-Net is able to detect cracks with high accuracy with few training data. The input of the SpAsE-Net is a 2D displacement vector which needs to be transferred into a 3D displacement vector. Therefore, the spatial-asymmetric encoderdecoder network (SpAsE-Net) was built to solve the above problem. SpAsE-Net is proposed to segment the cracks accurately with less training data. E-Commerce was invented at the end of the 19th century, but the infrastructure to make the full consumer electronic (CE) wave, not until 1980 until the invention of the IBM personal computer. In the years to come, this technology has brought in the comforts of the internet to the homes of many. In this article, we explain how computers and telecom networks connect together and how this technology has made an impact to our lives through the internet. SoundWave is a tool that lets you edit wave fields to include sound wave. This can be useful for effects such as adding a rain shower to a landscape video or removing rain from the sound of a waterfall. SoundWave for iOS is absolutely beautiful. It is easy to use, and you can get a lot of good results right away. Xtractor uses powerful AI-powered technologies and deep learning that replaces the need to manually encode each audio sample as a set of labels. Xtractor leverages GPU-accelerated Accelerated Sparse Representation (ASR) to automatically recognize and parse the raw waveform into highly compressible representations, such as FLAC format. These ASR codes are then used to train deep learning classifier. Compared to other low-level signal encoding algorithms, the ASR codes have been found to efficiently and automatically capture the essential information of audio signals with the least amount of input data. It's totally automatic and requires no human work.
