If you want to know more about the camera, you can tap the name of the video you want to download, shown as a thumbnail at the bottom. The video player is activated and the controls are kept on the home screen. A set of controls with a sideways arrow is displayed. Note: If the camera is not connected, no controls are shown. To add another series of video, tap on the download icon, which is shown as a box with a downward arrow. This icon will appear on the top right corner of the screen once you finish the previous recording. The new ultra HD 600MHz Series 44 matrix supports 18.2 Gbps of bandwidth and 600 MHz TMDS Clock frequency, the highest specified under the HDMI 2.0 standard. The Gefen EXT-UHD600A-44 is a 1U tall, rack-mountable enclosure that can also be placed on a shelf. It accommodates Gefen locking HDMI cables to ensure secure connections. In this video splitter, you can add one video at a time. Added video can be viewed frame by frame by dragging the timeline slider. To split video, place timeline slider on a particular frame and hit Add split point button to mark the split point. You can mark multiple split points by placing slider at a different part of a video. All split points along with duration of split and start/end time of output split videos can be viewed on split points menu. After selection of all split points, press Start splitting button to get split video parts as output. Record 4K videos at up to 30FPS in video mode and up to 12-bit 4:4:4 color or 14-bit 4:2:2 color, to take advantage of the full color spectrum and detail of 4K, even on slow consumer grade memory cards. You can also record DNR videos and add spoken or music comments.
