AO Bairro : - Edifício da Faculdade de Técnica da UNIGRADES- CHORIG. 152 A, 9410 - Porto Alegre . (celas)The present invention relates to a fuel cell having a hydrogen electrode and an oxygen electrode, and a method for producing a catalyst layer containing an electrode catalyst and carbon at least on the side thereof facing the electrolyte membrane. In recent years, the need for more compact size, lighter weight, and higher energy density for the fuel cell has increased for the purpose of making the fuel cell vehicle lighter and more convenient. For example, it is known for the fuel cell, having a hydrogen electrode and an oxygen electrode, to obtain a sufficient cell voltage by contacting a solid polymer electrolyte membrane with an electrode catalyst layer, and by putting the two together into a unitary structure (typically a laminate) where the electrodes are made of flat plate, and where the electrolyte is sandwiched between the electrodes. In one example of known technology, a catalyst layer is formed by spraying a solution of catalyst metal and carbon powder into the electrode; and in another example of known technology, a catalyst layer is formed by applying catalyst metal particles electrochemically to a substrate, and carbon is then applied to the catalyst metal. Japanese Patent Laid-Open Nos. 2003-8448 and 2003-8449, which are incorporated herein by reference, disclose a method for forming a catalyst layer by applying catalyst metal particles that are dispersed with carbon particles, but these methods have the problem that, because of their structure, the catalyst metal is kept separated from the carbon; and thus, the carbon and the catalyst metal cannot be efficiently used for the electrode catalyst layer. On the other hand, Japanese Patent Laid-Open Nos. 2002-35280 and 2002-35281, which are incorporated herein by reference, disclose a method for producing an electrode catalyst layer by applying a mixture of carbon and a catalyst metal. However, these methods can only form a catalyst layer in a thin film state, and have a problem that, since the catalyst metal is separated from the carbon, the efficiency of the use of the 04aeff104c
