View 1 Picture.. first of all, all of those cars are crappy the owner of this video uploaded this video to amazon prime and it was basically scraped off the internet. 40-year-old mother-of-one has spent a total of £150,000 on her 17-year-old son, in order to buy him a "money machine". The boy - who cannot be named - has spent more than two years playing games on micro-transactions alone. His mother, a 40-year-old accountant, has also paid a woman £8,000 per year to care for him. The boy was diagnosed with Asperger's syndrome when he was three and his mother began to fund his love of playing video games by making him the man of the house. Paying for a son: The money was raised by the woman, who has been looking after the boy since he was diagnosed with Asperger's syndrome when he was three years old (posed by model) 'An investment': The mum has spent the best part of £150,000 on the boy since he was diagnosed with Asperger's syndrome Photographed in a double bed, and lying in his mother's arms, the boy has his hand raised as a team of knights carry him through the images. Pictured again in a double bed, this time he is surrounded by pairs of trainers; one pair to represent men and another, a woman. Photographed on a pitch, and wearing women's trainers, his gaze fixes on the camera - like he is searching for something. The man of the house: The boy has been raised by his mother since he was diagnosed with Asperger's syndrome when he was three years old 'Love is hard work': The mum, from Birmingham, has racked up £150,000 in microtransactions buying games for the boy
