His recent book describes life there. There is something in the air, he says, in Roswell, that makes thinking and working harder. His staff has grown to twenty people — some new hires, many old friends, and many more family members. "It is a place where things happen, you know. It's a place where things just happen," he says, speaking slowly, as if not sure of the word for it. "There is a real possibility that you can just go out there and find your way to something
