The new Wish List feature allows user to create wish list. Users can additionally create an empty collection for images that they wish to eventually print for gifts at Christmas. This will help save them the trouble of adding the images to a separate album. Wish lists can be saved, either as a group or as a photo, and displayed as a list. These lists are attached to specific albums by the users. Should the wish list be emptied, it can be added to the regular Photo Library quite easily. The Wish List can also be shared with other users through the Share for Review service. Now Adobe Photoshop Elements and Elements 2 offer the ability to sequence videos and add audio to images. Events can even be time-coded. This adds an additional option to make videos more interesting for the viewers. A way to do this is by setting a keyframe on a drop and dragging it across the screen until you reach the desired moment. So with this feature, you can create a sequence that plays from one moment to the next. The software provides the location automatically, which makes things easier than adding each keyframe manually. Even if you have multiple events, you can merge them to make a really interesting sequence. While working with events, there's another feature to note. Events that are shown first can be converted to a silent movie with slideshows. This works really well, and you don't have to label the images. The concept is to set the first event as the default in the photo, and the others once they're processed. Conversion is also possible in the Camera RAW development application, but the option is not available for the individual camera RAWs. If you do convert, videos are stored as MP4s.

With every version, Adobe Photoshop is developing and thriving to create better and more appealing graphic designs. | It is a tool for designers and that is why Adobe Photoshop CC is very much developed as it is the easiest tool for anyone to edit images, and get them done in a short time span. It includes plenty of powerful features such as Smart Objects, Smart Sharpen, and Content Aware. To this end, we’re killing off all 3D tools and features in the Photoshop Creative Suite, and are announcing the new features and features that will be available to introduce and build into our products going forward. Drivers and APIs are changing and we expect many products-specific APIs to retire over time as our pipeline transition is underway. Adobe recently announced the migration to new native driver API for their content creation software – so called tToon, Displacer, Content-Aware Fill and others. The tToon and Displacer will be rolling out in 2020. This followed the release last year of the Blur Gallery utility. Although this is a very good step forward, it had a knock on effect with other less than desirable features being cut, the reason being the driver change. Previous desktop 3D graphics worked on a so called Render API that was tied to the operating system. Specifically, the older one being Windows 7 and above, the newer being Windows 10. Windows 7 did not have Direct3D 12, so the graphics drivers could not code for that. So instead the graphics driver team reconfigured the older code to support displaying clips. As mentioned in this CW Insight , the native API is much better, and Adobe has actively sunk large amounts of resources in to improving features. One of the biggest issues with the old driver was the way the graphics API from the previous driver was extended. A large amount of work was done to get it to run in DirectX 11 and 12. A result of this more recent API refresh in 2019 is seen in the clip player in the Organizer. The ease of use compared to the old, yet less feature-rich driver is a significant step forward.
